City Makes Progress on Mayor and Council Priorities 'Rockville 2040' and King Farm Farmstead Among the Initiatives

An update to the city's Comprehensive Master Plan, work on the "Rockville's Pike Neighborhood Plan" and a push for increased school construction funding are among Mayor and Council priorities that the city is making progress on this spring.

At the start of the current term, the Mayor and Council identified more than 20 priorities, which can be found at www.rockvillemd.gov/mayorcouncil. Each priority has been assigned to a city department and project manager. Progress on each of the priorities will be tracked, with the Mayor and Council receiving regular status updates.

The city is already making progress on several priorities, including:

- Meaningfully engaging with the county school system and the county and state government to promote school construction. The Mayor and Council delivered testimony on the county schools' construction budget during County Council budget hearings in February. April saw an increase in state aid for school construction. Learn more in the article on page 3.

- The Mayor and Council received the "Rockville's Pike Neighborhood Plan" from the Planning Commission in March and are making progress toward adopting it this year. A work session is scheduled for Monday, May 9, followed by a Monday, May 16 public hearing and more work into the summer. Learn more at www.rockvillemd.gov/rockvillespike and in the article on page 2.
- Completing the "Rockville 2040" master plan revision by 2018. Learn more, including how to be involved in citywide public forums in May and June, at www.rockvillemd.gov/rockville2040, or see the ad on page 3.
- Taking steps to be proactive in outreach to diverse populations. The Mayor and Council are scheduled to issue a proclamation on Monday, May 2, recognizing Asian Pacific American Heritage Month.

- Establishing a task force to find a dynamic use for the King Farm Farmstead that contributes to the community. Learn more at www.rockvillemd.gov/kingfarmfarmstead and in the article on page 3.

The city's Department of Public Works also recently submitted Transportation/Land Use Connection grant applications to the Metropolitan Washington Council of Governments for two additional Mayor and Council priorities: A "Vision Zero" plan for ending traffic-related fatalities and injuries on roads and a feasibility study for a pilot trolley/streetcar circulator. ❖

Mayor and Council Name Conway as New City Clerk

The Mayor and Council named Kathleen Conway as the new City Clerk/Director of Council Operations on April 11. Conway will start Monday, May 9.

Conway has served as Senior Director of Benefits for Interstate Hotels & Resorts in Arlington, Virginia, since April 2013. Her career includes over 20 years of management experience in program management, information technology, organizational development, human resources and training. She will report directly to the Mayor and Council and will serve as a vital link between the Mayor and Council and the community. Duties of the office will include all the responsibilities of the City Clerk, but will also include advanced research, analysis and coordination of Mayor and Council initiatives.

"The Mayor and Council are thrilled to announce that Ms. Kathleen Conway has accepted the position of City Clerk/Director of Council Operations," said Mayor Bridget Donnell Newton. "Kathleen has served on the Rockville Sister City Corporation and the Ethics Commission and is a longtime Rockville resident. She brings a passion for public service and will be a tremendous asset to the governing body."

Conway will also administer city elections, provide staff support to the Board of Supervisors of Elections and the Compensation Commission, and maintain up-to-date records for the city. "My family and I are long-term Rockville residents and I am looking forward to serving my community," Conway said. "I believe my career successes will allow me to deliver the results the community expects from this position." ❖

Treschuk to Retire After 27 Years as the City's Top Cop

After 44 years in law enforcement and 27 years as chief of the Rockville City Police Department (RCPD), Chief Terrance N. Treschuk announced in April that he will retire on June 1.

Treschuk was sworn in as chief on March 20, 1989. Three decades later, the RCPD is nationally recognized for its continued mission of effective community policing.

"I am honored and humbled to have worked alongside so many talented and dedicated members of the Rockville City Police Department," Treschuk said in an April 7 message on the RCPD Facebook page. "The men and women who serve are role models to others in being able to perform an extraordinarily difficult job with the highest levels of professionalism and competency. I appreciate what each and every one of them has done to make this community such a desirable place to live and work."

The department has been nationally accredited since 1994.

"Chief Treschuk is a consum-mate professional who will be greatly missed," Acting City Manager Craig L. Simoneau said in a message to city staff.

A recently published comparative uniform crime report for the City of Rockville shows that there has been a 32 percent reduction in Part I crimes within the city over the last decade. Part I crimes are crimes against persons (murder, rape, robbery and assault) and property (burglary, larceny, theft and arson).

"I want to thank all the citizens of Rockville for allowing me the privilege to serve as your police chief," Treschuk said. ❖

Save Money and Protect Local Streams with RainScapes Rewards

Single-family homeowners and nonprofits, including religious institutions, private schools and homeowners associations, can receive up to $3,500 in rebates through Rockville's RainScapes Rewards program.

The program offers rebates for installing rain barrels, planting conservation landscapes and native trees, and removing pavement – actions that can reduce flooding, decrease pollution in local streams and attract birds and butterflies.

Interested in learning more about rain barrels? Attend an information session from 1:30-3 p.m. on Sunday, June 5, at Croydon Creek Nature Center, 357 Avery Road. Attendees will learn how to buy, install and maintain rain barrels, and a free rain barrel will be raffled off to one lucky Rockville resident. Spaces are limited for the free session. Registration is required. To register, contact the RainScapes coordinator with your name and address at rainscapes@rockvillemd.gov or 240-314-8877.

For more details and applications, visit www.rockvillemd.gov/rainscapes.

Applications are accepted and approved on a first-come, first-served basis. To be eligible for a rebate, the property must be located within the City of Rockville. Projects must be approved by the RainScapes coordinator before work can begin and must follow the design guidelines outlined in the application packet to receive a rebate.

Considering Next Steps for Town Center Parking

The Mayor and Council are continuing to work with Rockville Town Center stakeholders, including merchants, property owners, residents and visitors, to discuss Town Center parking.

A follow-up discussion to a February work session on Town Center parking is scheduled for the Mayor and Council meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, June 13. The Mayor and Council will review the key information shared by stakeholders and provide direction on next steps. Suggestions shared by stakeholders in February included improved directional signage, designating meter parking spaces for food pick up and improved public information about parking and validation.

For more information about this ongoing dialogue, contact Louise Atkins at latkins@rockvillemd.gov or 240-314-8106.

Find more information about parking in Town Center at www.rockvilleparking.com, including a parking map, parking discounts and answers to frequently asked questions.

Be Wise
don't over-fertilize

When it rains, fertilizer from your yard can wash into nearby storm drains and streams that empty into the Chesapeake Bay. If you fertilize your lawn, follow Maryland's new fertilizer law:

- Read and follow all label instructions
- Do not fertilize if heavy rain is expected
- Keep fertilizer away from streams, sidewalks and driveways
- Don't fertilize between November 15 and March 1
- Hire only certified professionals to fertilize lawns

News You Can Use

Fighting Mosquitoes Begins at Home Eliminating and Monitoring Container Breeding Sites is Key

While a mosquito bite is an annoyance, a bite from an infected mosquito can spread disease.

The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) Mosquito Control program recommends a community-wide effort to reduce mosquito breeding areas. Eliminating breeding sites is key. Mosquitoes lay eggs in water-filled containers as small as a bottle cap. The most effective method of controlling mosquitoes is reducing or eliminating containers where they breed. Community members are encouraged to share the following tips with neighbors:

Once a week, empty and scrub, turn over, cover, or throw out items that hold water such as flowerpots, watering cans, buckets, planters, toys, pools, birdbaths, old tires, boats, tarps, and garbage cans and lids. Tightly cover water storage containers (e.g. rain barrels). For containers without lids, use wire mesh with holes smaller than an adult mosquito.

Clean gutters and downspout screens regularly. Position drain pipes to ensure drainage.

Fill in low spots in yards, where water pools.

Use screens on windows and doors and repair holes in screens.

The city is also working with MDA to reduce mosquito breeding. MDA will perform monthly monitoring, from May through September, of select city-owned properties. MDA will treat water on the properties with a biological larvicide, when warranted. Rockville also inspects public and private stormwater facilities (e.g. ponds that collect and release stormwater runoff) to ensure the facilities are functioning properly, and enforces maintenance and repairs, when necessary. The city is training employees, with help from MDA, about how to identify and reduce mosquito breeding areas.

For more information, including links to resources from Montgomery County, MDA and the Centers for Disease Control, visit www.rockvillemd.gov/mosquito. ❖

'Rockville's Pike Neighborhood Plan' Hearing Set for May 16

The Public Record Remains Open Through May 23

The Mayor and Council invite community members to comment during the second of two scheduled public hearings on the Planning Commission's recommended "Rockville's Pike Neighborhood Plan." The hearing will be held as part of the Mayor and Council meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 16, at City Hall, 111 Maryland Ave.

Read the plan at www.rockvillemd.gov/rockvillespike or in hard copy at City Hall and at the Rockville and Twinbrook libraries.

The public record for written comments will remain open through Monday, May 23. Testimony may be sent to mayorandcouncil@rockvillemd.gov, or by mail to: City Clerk's Office, Rockville City Hall, 111 Maryland Ave., Rockville, MD 20850.

The "Rockville's Pike

Neighborhood Plan" was approved by the Planning Commission on March 9. In accordance with Maryland law, the Mayor and Council have up to 150 days from the commission's approval to review and act on the plan.

The recommended plan, which is being updated for the first time since 1989, establishes policies for land use, transportation, parks and other topics along a key two-mile stretch of the Rockville Pike corridor, south of Rockville Town Center. The plan seeks to ensure that there is a mix of commercial and residential uses along the corridor, that existing residential neighborhoods are protected, that the emerging new neighborhood is attractive, and that Rockville Pike retains and attracts local and national retail to enhance the corridor's economic viability. ❖

City Considering Energy Benchmarking for Nonresidential Buildings

Requirements Would be Consistent with the County's

Rockville will consider having Montgomery County's energy benchmarking requirements for nonresidential buildings apply within the city limits, under a proposed ordinance scheduled for introduction during the Mayor and Council meeting on Monday, May 16.

Benchmarking is the practice of tracking energy usage, to compare how a building is performing with past performance or against similar buildings nationwide. Building energy benchmarking and transparency policies are growing in popularity nationwide. The county and Washington, D.C. have enacted benchmarking and disclosure requirements for nonresidential buildings of certain sizes.

The county's benchmarking mandate currently does not apply to properties in Rockville. If the Mayor and Council approve the ordinance, Rockville properties will have the same requirements, opportunities to reduce energy costs, and access to technical and financial programs, as other county properties.

Learn more about the proposed ordinance when the May 16 meeting agenda is posted at www.rockvillemd.gov/AgendaCenter.

The county law requires building owners, including the county government, to benchmark energy use of nonresidential buildings greater than 50,000 square feet using a free online tool; to have the data verified by a "recognized data verifier" in the first year, and then every three years; and to report data to the county annually for public disclosure.

The county is also developing new financing programs, such as Commercial Property Assessed Clean Energy (C-PACE) and the Montgomery Co. Green Bank, which can be paired with benchmarking to help facilitate investment in energy efficiency improvements and clean energy. C-PACE helps commercial and nonprofit building owners improve energy and water efficiency while saving money. The program covers up to 100 percent of the cost of qualifying energy-saving upgrades and allows owners to repay the cost through a surcharge on their county property tax bill.

State Legislative Wins: Schools, Program Open Space and Youth Services

Capital Budget Includes $100,000 for Swim and Fitness Center Improvements

Increased funding for school construction, partial restoration of funding for Program Open Space and the protection of funding for youth services were among the wins for Rockville during the 2016 Maryland General Assembly that concluded April 11.

State lawmakers passed legislation doubling – to $40 million – the state’s supplemental school construction funding levels for schools with significant enrollment, beginning in Fiscal Year 2018, which begins July 1, 2017. Montgomery County Executive Isiah Leggett’s recommended FY 2017-2022 Capital Improvements Program (CIP) budget assumed the increased funding, which will provide $15.5 million in supplemental aid to county public schools over the six-year CIP.

Rockville received, for the second consecutive year, a $1.3 million grant for road maintenance and small infrastructure improvement projects. While this is the fourth consecutive year the state provided a one-time restoration in the highway user revenue, lawmakers still did not address a city priority of permanently restoring funding cuts made by the state during the Great Recession.

The legislature approved restoration of some of the money that was drastically cut from Program Open Space during the Great Recession. The state aid, which was used to plug holes in the state’s general fund during the recession, goes toward creating parks and recreation facilities.

The FY17 state budget includes $1.8 million for youth services bureaus, such as Rockville’s Community Services Division. The budget also includes language that guarantees funding at the current level and states that the money cannot be used for another purpose. The Community Services Division uses the money to provide prevention and intervention services to at-risk youth.

In the capital budget, Rockville will receive $100,000 in state aid toward improvements to the Rockville Swim and Fitness Center locker rooms and to make other parts of the center compliant with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

For more details on these state legislative priorities, contact Linda Moran at lmoran@rockvillemd.gov or 240-314-8115. ✦

Community Members Wanted for King Farm Farmstead Task Force

The Mayor and Council are seeking three community members for a task force that will identify the best uses for the King Farm Farmstead and funding sources for developing the historic property. The community members cannot live in King Farm. The King Farm Citizens Assembly will nominate three King Farm residents.

The 7-acre farmstead, which was dedicated to the city for use as a public park, includes two large dairy barns, a garage, the main farm house, a community garden and several smaller buildings at 1101 Grand Champion Drive. At the direction of the Mayor and Council, the city conducted an assessment of the facilities’ conditions in 2014. The proposed Fiscal Year 2017 budget includes funding to improve the structural integrity of the dairy barns.

Metro Funding, Policing and Housing on City’s Wish List for Federal Aid

Mayor Bridget Donnell Newton and city staff were scheduled to bring the following requests for federal support to an April 28 meeting with the city’s congressional delegation in Washington, D.C.:

- Metro funding: Federal funding to make urgently needed safety improvements to Metro rail system, to expand cell service in tunnels, to improve radio signals for emergency responders and to address Metro’s aging fleet. Metro is critical to Rockville’s transportation network and is heavily relied upon by residents, workers and city visitors.

- Stormwater management utility fee legislation: A request for federal legislation requiring states, instruments of the state (e.g. public school systems and colleges), and counties to pay municipal stormwater fees for public properties within municipal city limits. This would be modeled after legislation sponsored by Sen. Benjamin L. Cardin and enacted in 2011 that pertained to federal properties.

- Community Oriented Policing Services grant: A request to maintain funding for the federal grant program known as “COPS.” The Rockville City Police Department is reviewing program criteria and could apply for a COPS grant of up to $125,000 to expand community policing.

- Community Development Block Grant: A request that this federal grant funding, which has been cut significantly in recent years, not be cut further. The city puts the funding toward housing rehabilitation for low-income homeowners and other low- and moderate-income housing rehabilitation.
- Infrastructure upgrades: Requests for federal funding for bridge rehabilitation, sanitary sewer system improvements and stormwater system renovation.

The city also planned to update the federal delegation on plans to extend Maryland and Dawson avenues to support the second phase of Town Center development. The $12 million project may be suitable for a spring 2017 Transportation Investment Generating Economic Recovery (TIGER) grant application.

Find more information, including video of the Mayor and Council’s April 18 discussion of the federal priorities at www.rockvillemd.gov/AgendaCenter. For more on Rockville’s federal priorities, contact Linda Moran at lmoran@rockvillemd.gov or 240-314-8115. ✦

- Connect and educate citizens nationwide about the work of their government.
- Improve the perception and morale of public servants.
- Help inspire a new generation of public servants.

At the heart of the program is the importance of honoring public employees and telling them that their dedication and service are noticed and appreciated. Learn more at <http://publicservicerecognitionweek.org/>.

Rockville Police to Participate in National Police Week

The Mayor and Council are scheduled to issue a proclamation on Monday, May 2 declaring the Week of May 15-21 as "National Police Week in Rockville."

National Police Week honors law enforcement officers who have lost their lives in the line of duty. This year, as in the past, many officers from the Rockville City Police Department (RCPD) will participate in events throughout the week in Washington, D.C., home of the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial. Officers will also attend the annual Police Week memorial ceremony held by Montgomery County. Three RCPD officers shared how they will participate this year and offered thoughts on what the experience means to them:

Maj. Bob Rappoport will run in the 10th Annual National Police Week 5K run on Saturday, May 14. "This year I will be running in memory of Montgomery County Police Officer Noah Leotta who was struck by a drunk driver on Rockville Pike near Edmonston Drive while working a holiday alcohol task force on Dec. 3 and died of his injuries seven days later," Rappoport said. Proceeds from the 5K support the Officer Down Memorial Page (www.odmp.org) and Concerns Of Police Survivors (C.O.P.S.) (<http://nationalcops.com>), which supports survivors of officers lost to a line-of-duty death. Learn more at www.nationalpoliceweek5k.com.

Cpl. J. Pfaehler will participate for the sixth time in the Police Unity Tour, on a three-day, 250-mile bicycle ride between Richmond, Virginia and the national memorial to raise awareness about the risks and challenges that officers face every day. Pfaehler is riding in honor of two law enforcement rangers with the National Park Service and a Montgomery County Police officer, each of whom committed suicide last year. Riders must raise $1,750, which goes to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund. "As I'm raising these funds, I try and raise awareness about the mental wellness issues within the law enforcement community, to hopefully break the stigma that has a stranglehold on us," Pfaehler said. Learn more at www.policeunitytourchapter4.com.

The Rockville Police Honor Guard and Motor Units will provide escorts to family and friends of fallen officers on May 11-12 from Reagan National Airport to hotels. "Our officers feel proud to be able to assist the families of fallen officers," said Lt. Ron Merritt, one of 14 honor guard members participating. "It is an honor in itself."

Rockville will join the American Public Works Association (APWA) to celebrate National Public Works Week from Monday, May 16 through Friday, May 20.

The highlight of the week will be the annual Equipment Show from 11 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Thursday, May 19 at the outdoor pool parking lot at the Rockville Swim and Fitness Center, 355 Martins Lane. Kids—and kids at heart—will be able to climb into the operator's seat of some of the big trucks used by the city's Department of Public Works.

The free show includes balloons, popcorn, coloring books and other giveaways and the chance to meet some of the public works employees who provide the important services that keep Rockville running.

APWA first sponsored National Public Works Week in 1960. Today, more than 29,000 APWA members in the U.S. and Canada use the week to energize and educate the public about the important contributions of public works, including planning, building, managing and operating infrastructure and services in our communities.

This year's Public Works Week theme is "Public Works Always There." The theme spotlights the pervasiveness of public works and how communities depend on public works professionals who are always there and always ready.

Building Safety Month Focuses on the Science of Safety

Theme is 'Driving Growth Through Innovation, Resilience and Safety'

The Mayor and Council are scheduled to issue a proclamation on Monday, May 9 recognizing Building Safety Month in Rockville in May.

This year's theme of "Building Codes: Driving Growth Through Innovation, Resilience and Safety" highlights the importance of building codes.

"Not only do the codes provide a level of safety for our citizens, this year focuses on how the codes are determined," said Timothy Diehl, the city's plans and permit supervisor. "It provides for a better educated end user, and hopefully better structures and smart growth for the city."

Weekly themes are:

- "Building Solutions for All Ages" (May 2-8), with a focus on how better accessibility and accommodations makes it easier for the country's growing senior population to age in place.
- "The Science Behind the Codes" (May 9-15), with a focus on the importance of up-to-date building codes in flood proofing, fire resistance, structural strength, wind design, sustainability, safe drinking water, airflow, energy efficiency and more.

- "Learn from the Past, Build for Tomorrow" (May 16-22), with a focus on how building code adoption and enforcement is one of the strongest strategies against natural disasters.
- "Building Codes: A Smart Investment" (May 23-29), with a focus on how following building codes can make homes more energy efficient and conserve water and other resources.

The International Code Council, a United States-based membership association, created Building Safety Month to promote safety in the built environment.

Gear Up for Bike to Work Day with Rockville 11

Biking is fun and can make life simple. Why not take your foot off the gas pedal for a day and pedal away for Bike to Work Day, from 6:30-9 a.m. on Friday, May 20?

The city will celebrate with pit stops in Rockville Town Square and Falls Grove. Learn more in the Bike Month events listings on this page.

In recent years, Rockville has marked Bike to Work Day by stoking a friendly rivalry with the City of Frederick, to see which city can draw more bike riders. This year the rivalry ratchets up a notch as the two cities try to top each other at getting the word out about the benefits of biking. Check out Rockville's entry, a Rockville 11-produced promo that will get you geared up and ready to ride, by visiting the city's YouTube channel at www.rockvillemd.gov/youtube and searching "Bike to Work Day." Then, support the city's entry by following the link to cast your vote at www.rockvillemd.gov/bikemonth.

The YouTube channel also offers a new series of safety tips for bicyclists, pedestrians and motorists. Find them by searching "safety tips," or catch them throughout May on Rockville 11.

Get to Know the Carl Henn Millennium Trail this Bike Month

Bike Month offers an opportunity to get out of the car. While the region's motorists are all too familiar with the Capital Beltway, here are a few facts you might not know about the Carl Henn Millennium Trail, aka Rockville's "Bike Beltway":

- The Carl Henn Millennium Trail is a 10.6-mile loop that encircles the City of Rockville.
- The Millennium Trail officially opened in 2006, making this year its 10th anniversary.
- The trail was named for Carl Henn on Sept. 27, 2010, after Henn's death that year. Henn, an avid cyclist and longtime Rockville resident, advocated for the creation and improvement of the Millennium Trail. In naming the trail for Henn, the Mayor and Council issued a resolution calling him a "dedicated public servant and lifelong friend, educator and protector of the environment."
- The Rockville Bicycle Advisory Committee (RBAC) will lead a ride of the trail, beginning at 10 a.m. on Sunday, June 12. Find more RBAC rides throughout the summer at www.rockvillemd.gov/rbac.
- The trail is part of Rockville's more than 35 miles of paths, four miles of bike lanes, and three miles of roads with sharrows — shared-lane markings (a bicycle symbol with two arrows above it) on roads with higher bicycle volumes or roads that are bicycle routes.

Duball Wins MEDA Award for Rockville Town Center Project Upton Apartments and Cambria Hotel & Suites Cited for Transforming Town Center

The new Upton Apartments and Cambria Hotel & Suites project is receiving statewide recognition for helping to transform Rockville Town Center into a thriving downtown destination.

The Maryland Economic Development Association (MEDA) announced that Duball LLC will receive MEDA's Economic Development Project Award for the project, during a ceremony on May 2 at the MEDA's annual conference in Cambridge.

The Upton, at 44 Maryland Ave., offers 263 luxury apartments located steps away from multiple transit options. Next door, at 1 Helen Heneghan Way, the 140-room Cambria Hotel & Suites includes an indoor heated pool and fitness center, onsite dining, and multiple meeting rooms. The ground level features 17,000 square feet of retail scheduled to open this spring. Tenants include Old Line Bank, Panera Bread, Supercuts and World of Beer.

Developed by Duball Rockville, LLC, a joint venture between affiliates of Duball LLC and CIM Urban Real Estate Fund, LP, the project offers a variety of employment opportunities, housing availability and significant revenue that enhances services in Town Center. Rockville Economic Development, Inc., the city's economic development agency, nominated Duball LLC for the award.

"It was one of the few major projects to get started in Maryland as the country was still recovering from the recession, and we felt that it was a great example of a mixed-use redevelopment project," said Laurie Boyer, executive director of REDI. "Located just two blocks from the Rockville Metro station, this project will help tie together the relatively new Rockville Town Square area with the established Regal Row retail center, allowing for a nice flow between all of these areas in downtown Rockville."

Mentoring Program Yields Rewards for Mentors and Young Students Rockville's Program Celebrates its 21st Year

Rockville's mentoring program, which celebrates its 21st year during the 2016-17 school year, is looking for high school students (age 16 and older) and adults to offer guidance, friendship and encouragement to elementary school students. No special skills are required, just a willingness to devote an hour a week to work with a child.

The program has expanded to its largest size in years, with 60 students across Twinbrook, Beall and Ritchie Park elementary schools and the Twinbrook Community Recreation Center. The time commitment is one hour a week from October through May. Student Service Learning credits are available to high school students.

The program is professionally run by the city's Community Services Division in partnership with the county school system. Volunteers must be screened and interviewed before the program begins. Mentors receive training before they start and coaching and support along the way.

Rockville buildings or utility poles could provide a place to mount small cell antennas, like the ones seen here in Derwood (left) and King Farm (right), to increase coverage for cellphone users.

Planning Commission to Take Up Small Cell Antennas Verizon Also Proposing Monopole at the County Detention Center

Buildings and utility poles in Rockville as short as 15 feet could provide a place to mount small antennas to increase coverage for cellphone users, under a proposed zoning text amendment that the city's Planning Commission and the Mayor and Council are expected to consider in the coming weeks.

Known as small cell, or micro-cell antennas, the antennas are typically about 2 square feet in size. They are intended to provide additional coverage in areas with a high volume of cell traffic, or to fill in areas with marginal coverage. The proposed text amendment, filed by Verizon Wireless, would allow the installation of small, or micro-cell, antennas on existing structures, such as buildings or utility poles, with a minimum height of 15 feet. The current code requires a minimum height of 35 feet.

The Planning Commission is scheduled to review the proposal and make recommendations at its meeting on Wednesday, May 11. Should the commission recommend that the proposal go forward, the Mayor and Council are tentatively scheduled to hold a public hearing on the proposal during their meeting on Monday, June 6.

Another proposal by Verizon would allow a 100-foot-tall monopole for a cellular antenna at the Montgomery County Detention Center, at 1307 Seven Locks Road. The proposal calls for the monopole to be erected behind an existing garage on the site and located adjacent to Interstate 270, about 325 feet from the nearest homes, which back on to Seven Locks Road. It requires a special exception waiver of the city's 50-foot height limit for monopoles within 500 feet of a residential zone. It must be reviewed and recommended by the Planning Commission and by the city's Board of Appeals before approval by the Mayor and Council. The proposal, which is not connected to Verizon's request for the text amendment for small cell antennas, is in the pre-application phase, the first step of the city's review process.

For more information, find Planning Commission and Mayor and Council agendas when they are posted at www.rockville.md.gov/AgendaCenter, or call the city's Community Planning and Development Services Department at 240-314-8200. ✦
